WEDNESDAY...... MAY 24, 1876.

What Should the South Do? First, send her ablest and most experienced men to St. Louis. The fate of the Democratic party and of the country depends upon her. She must step to the front, and take the lead. Secondly, having taken the lead, she must at St. Louis refuse to readopt the two-thirds | Ford's Hotel on Wednesday evening. The Thirdly, she must make a platform accept able to the northern Democratic States, and nominate a candidate who can carry New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

That is all. But may there not be doubt as to the candidate? Not as to what sort of a candidate. There may be as to the particular man, though we do not think there is room for doubt even as to the man. The candidate must not be a southern man. That is too plain for argument. A "Confederate" candidate for President would insure a united North. To say that Mr. BAYARD voted for BRECKINRIDGE in 1860 is to declare that he is not to be thought of by anybody who prefers success to defeat. Who, then, should be the candidate? Either TILDEN, or some other man who can certainly get the votes of New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

The following article from the last issue of the New York World argues the question in a style that must command respect: Without abandoning the hope that Indiana, in Without abandoning the nope that Indiana, in which both parties are equally infected with the ragmoney heresy, may be revolutionized in November, or even in October, it is a fact that whatever the result in the October States the Democracy of the Union have only to hold the States which are now Democratic as proved in their last elections—to wit, the Southern States, the Pacific States, and the Metapalita States (New York, New Jersey, and Con-Union have only to hold the States which are now Democratic as proved in their last elections—to with the Southern States, the Pacific States, and the Metropolitan States (New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut)—in order to elect a Democratic President. The electoral votes of these three groups of States not only constitute a majority of all that will be cast, but they cannot be affected adversely by any possible result in these two October States [Ohio and Indiana]. The different and, as we think, sound position of the Democracy on financial issues in the three groups of States just named, makes it impossible they should be injured by an adverse result in any States not in accord with them upon these grave questions of Federal policy. Moreover, Illinois and Wisconsin, which gave opposition majorities in 1874, we firmly believe will indorse a sound Democratic candidate upon a sound Democratic platform in 1876; and the Democracy of the great State of Pennsylvania, for the first time in her history since the beginning of the war, this year will go into the November contest on a fair field, unburdened by the lost prestige of the October election against the fearful odds of the whole concentrated Federal power—odds which secured a Republican prestige in October, 1872, by a majority of only 34,000, and then rolled it up to a Republican majority in November, 1872, of 136,000!

Whatever the result, therefore, may be of the election in the October States, a wise nomination and a sound platform at St. Louis will assuredly give to the Democracy, out of 366 electoral votes, of which 185 are a majority, this victory.

TILDEN AND HENDRICKS.—We must now make up our minds to give Ohio to the Republicans; but Hendricks can carry Indiana, and a Tilden and Hendricks ticket would be invincible. Governor Hendricks is young, and can afford to take the second place—the sacrifice, if it be one, the party have a right to expect of him. Indeed, so overshadowing is the strength of Tilden, as we write, that it would be wise for Governor Hendricks to cease to oppose him, and take a unanimous nomination for Vice-President. EFFECT OF THE ACTION OF THE OHIO CON-VENTION .- Washington, May 21 .- The result of the Ohio Convention may make trouble here, as it has undoubtedly encouraged the soft-money Democrats, who had of late given up their hopes and appeared contented to fall into the ranks. Some of them now talk of a split in the party unless they are allowed to rule. But the hard-money Democrats are not discouraged. They mean to stand by their principles, and say that to give in to the inflation sentiment would be to give the election to the Republicans overwhelmingly, and that if they are to be beaten they prefer to die with honor, and not to be dragged at the heels of Mr. Allen and the inflation crowd. They admit that the Allen movement will lose Indiana to the Demoeratic party, and that it narrows the chances of success; but the eastern Democrats count on the whole South, New York, New Jersey, and enough other States to carry the election .- New York Herald.

THE PROSPECT FOR ST. LOUIS .- There have been some rapid strides made during as it is the last meeting of this canvass, and the night the past week in the canvass by the friends of Mr. Tilden for the presidency. Michigan appears to be wheeling into line for The Pacific States are clearly set in that direction. The Democratic press of Iowa, Minnesota, and Missouri largely favor his nomination, as do many southern journals. In the mean time Senator Bayard, of Delaware, is stepping into prominence, without so far attracting any hostility from any quarter .- Washington telegram-New York World.

LET US SPEAR .- We do not agree with some of our State exchanges who assert that the less the people of the South have to do with the nomination of the Democratic candidates at St. Louis the better for the party and for us.

The people of the South, in our opinion, are as much interested in the selection of acceptable and available candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency as those of any other section of the country, and the one hundred and twenty-seven electoral votes of ham, Thomas Cox. the South constitute two-thirds of the number necessary to elect our candidates. We have been playing "mum" for the last eleven years, and we think we have endorsed the policy of silence long enough. We would not be understood by this to be meant as approving the ravings of Mr. Toombs or the indiscretions of Mr. Hill. We simply mean that the sensible leaders of the South, representing its sense and not its nonsense, should be allowed and expected to express their views on all proper occasions. We'would select as our delegates to the Democratic Convention men of the best northwestern States are in such a condition intellect, the purest statesmanship, and the soundest discretion, and we would say would have them meet their brethren of other sections of the country and confer tothirds rule be readopted. GENERAL HANDOCK-SOUTHERN DENO-CRATS.—Within a day or two quite a strong feeling has been manifested among southern Democrats in favor of the nomination of General Hancock. TREAT REDUCTION OF BOARD AT THE CELEBRATED ROCKBRIDGE ALUM SPRINGS

Owing to the depressed condition of the country the proprietor has determined to lower his charges, that all may be able to derive the benefits from the use of these justly celebrated waters. They need no recommendation to Virginians, since they have so fully established their efficiency through the thousands who have been brought from deathy door to renewed health by the use of their wonderfollowed the thousands who have been brought from deathy beate Spring, which was opened last year, has been thoroughly analyzed by Professor M. B. Harden, of the V. M. I., of Virginia, and by comparison shows it to be fully as strong as "Rawley" of carbonate of iron, having a small quantity more than one and a small quantity less than the other two springs. So in addition to the water that has made these springs so famous the proprietor takes pleasure in announcing that he can furnish those who may need to drink either separately or in connection with the more celebrated waters of these springs a pure carbonate of iron (chalybeate) water inferior to none, and equalled only by Rawley, in the State. This at the very cheap rates, with accommodation fully up to any previous year.
